To Whom It May Concern

After experiencing major financial problems involving a perspective buyer and in-house employees, a local attorney recommended that I contact Information Security Consultants (ISC).

Prior to starting their work, ISC explained the details and process of forensic technology. Imaging, examination and confidential reports regarding every piece of information found in servers and network stations. Then they interviewed me to find out exactly what I was looking for and what was my goal. Forensic Technology is an amazing process.

They were able to determine that there were no unwanted back doors into the system. They obtained passwords that were needed to access the server and the accounting systems where multiple sets of books were found. This allowed us to explore the full nature of the financial events that had taken place. In addition, ISC recovered emails which further illuminated the events.

Without the examination of the computers we would never have known the full extent of what had occurred. This knowledge allowed us to make good decisions on how to proceed.

During the entire process, Information Security Consultants were professional and responsive to our needs and questions. As a business owner, I highly recommend ISC for your forensic technology needs.

Sincerely
